As a leader in the rapidly changing media industry, you need to keep finding new ways of doing business and address changes that can either provide opportunities for your business or threaten it. The best way to do this is by stepping away from your daily business to understand the environment that is producing the changes, see new trends and approaches to our business as they take shape and take time to think about how to tackle them. The VDZ Akademie offers this opportunity with the 10th VDZ Online Publishers’ Tour to New York City and San Francisco / Silicon Valley from 21. – 27. September 2014. This renowned tour will focus on two main areas:

- Ideas and opportunities for revenue generation
- Technologies and trends that will impact the future relevance of your company.

The first stop of the tour will be New York City, the center of media and advertising in the USA and home to the rapidly growing “Silicon Alley”. We will meet with major magazine media brands as well as startups involved with media and advertising.

We will then fly west to San Francisco and Silicon Valley, a thriving entrepreneurial ecosystem and a major center of technology and innovation. It is the home of such tech giants as Google, Apple, Twitter, Intel and Facebook. We will meet with digital natives who are developing new ideas, business models, technologies and tools that are advancing and disrupting media.

A number of topics will be addressed during the tour including:

- Paid Content / Subscription Approaches
- Mobile and Online Advertising
- Data and Analytics
- Programmatic Advertising
- Native Advertising
- Social Media and Marketing
- Digital business models (Magazines and pure plays)
